Big Al takes big dive as artificial reef

ALEX BOERNER • alex.boerner@scripps.com

The tugboat Big Al, left, is worked into position by Molly, behind Big Al, and Regina T, right, as final preparations are made for it to be sunk Tuesday afternoon in 187 feet of water about 9 miles northeast of the St. Lucie Inlet. Big Al will be known as the Glasrud Reef, named for Ted Glasrud, who sponsored much of the cleanup and preparation of Big Al. The reef is one of many artificial reef projects coordinated through the Martin County Anglers Club Artificial Reef Program.
